MISS E. JOY ROSE Counselor, Class of 1945

We, the Class of 1945, wish to extend our gratitude to you, Miss Rose, for your wise guidance given us throughout our high school years.

We entered here in a world at war, yet we had hope of graduating into one of peace. Torn between vocational and educational desires and the demands of war, we have been confronted with many problems. Because we found your counseling a source of strength and hope, we turned to you in times of need. Individual, group, and class difficulties have always been met with your sage, quiet decisions. Only leadership such as yours could bring our high school career to a close with confidence in the future.

President's Address

PARENTS, Teachers, Friends,

It is with pleasure that I, in behalf of the class of 1945, welcome you to our Class Day exercises. We appreciate the interest you show by your presence here.

We owe much to our parents, who have guided us through our lives, who have watched us grow from childhood to young man and womanhood, and who have sacrificed much that we might enjoy our youth.

A great deal, too, is owed to our teachers who have striven to broaden our knowledge and to fit us to be world citizens. I extend gratitude and respect to our teachers of Greenfield High School for their continuous advice, friendliness, and devotion to us. We sincerely appreciate all that they have done for us.

Classmates,

I am deeply grateful to you for having chosen me to represent you during this, our senior year. I have enjoyed what little I have done. I think that all the credit should go to you who have worked together to make our class outstanding and commendable. I hope that this school will never forget this class because I know that we shall never forget this school.

It will be my privilege to introduce to you five of my classmates who will discuss some of the advantages of living in Greenfield. These speakers have been selected because of their excellent scholastic achievements. Each is worthy of the privilege and honor which has been bestowed upon him.

EDWARD JAMES FLYNN

The History of Greenfield

Nour modern life there is such a demand for looking toward the future that we seldom turn into the pages of the past. For this reason let us, for a few minutes, go back to the early days of our town, Greenfield, and review some of the main points in her history.

The ground on which we now live was once a part of Deerfield. In 1686 Joshua Pomeroy built the first house in what is now Greenfield. This was located below the old Harugari Hall. Because of the many Indian wars and attacks, the early inhabitants were forced to seek refuge in the forts of Deerfield at various times during those early years. Most people know the tragic story of Eunice Williams, who was killed by an Indian who had taken her prisoner. There were about one hundred and fifty captives taken on a raid in Deerfield and led on their way to Canada by a route which crossed Petty's Plain near our present Fair Grounds. In recent years a stone has been erected in Mrs. Williams's memory at the approximate place of her death.

The settlement was called the Green River Lands, a name taken from the Picomegon or Green River, named thus because of its color. In spite of the dangers brought by the savages, the Green River settlement grew and desired to separate from the mother town. Although Deerfield refused several times, finally it consented, and in 1753 the General Court of Massachusetts authorized "The District of Greenfield." Thus our town with a population of one hundred and ninety-two started on its road to fame and success.

At the time of the incorporation of Greenfield there was a street plan in which Main Street was laid off into lots and was called Green River Street. If we could go back to that time, we might find the fortified home of Edward Allen, which was on the land where the Hollister House, now the McCarthy Funeral Home, stands. On the Mansion House Corner we would see James Corse's home. This man, a well-known hunter and scout, kept the first tavern in Greenfield. Where Beacon Street playground is today, Rev. Edward Billings, the first minister of the town, lived in his fortified home, Fort Stocking.

We shall now travel to another district of the town — Cheapside. This was of great importance, since here were the first homes, industries, and river trading. It was of such importance that it nearly became the shire town of Franklin County when Hampshire County was divided in 1811. You see at this time Cheapside was not a part of Greenfield. In fact, it took nearly one hundred and fifty years of pleading with the legislature for this addition to be made in 1896.

Greenfield played a commendable part in the American Revolutionary War. Under the leadership of Captain Agrippa Wells, a company of volunteers left the day following the battle of Lexington. Captain "Grip" was a hero to our town as he also served three months at Ticonderoga and took part in Shay's Rebellion.

About 1840 Greenfield was well known to the scientific world. While Dexter Marsh was quarrying flag stones for the walk in front of the Court House, then on Bank Row, he found marks on the stones which resembled tracks of birds. With the aid of Dr. James Deane and science professors he proved that there were fossils in the red sandstone. His collection increased until, after his death, it was sold for three thousand dollars. One slab of sixty square feet contained seventy distinct footprints. From these fossils found in Greenfield it was possible to estimate the type of life once in existence here. Thus a great contribution was made to the world of science.

If we should return to the years of Dexter Marsh's life, we would find a Main Street hardly resembling that of today. That was a great era of stage coaches. One could travel from Boston to Albany by way of Greenfield in about two days. The Mansion House and other hostelries were of great importance, since here the weary traveler sought his rest. The first Court House on Bank Row was beside the Franklin Bank, now the First National Bank. Across the Common stood the Second Congregational Church on the site it occupies today. Towards Main Street from the church was the Roger Newton House, which until its destruction recently was the oldest home remaining in town. It was moved to Newton Place some years ago. During the year, 1840, the town meeting was held in a building on Federal Street which afterwards became the fire station. In 1854 there was a Grand Ball at the opening of Washington Hall, our present town hall. About one thousand persons are said to have attended this celebration. A few years after this, a railroad was started from Greenfield to Northampton, and a new era in the history of our town began.

Let us again go back to the beginning of our community and find the origin of the names of some of our sections. The district which we call "The Meadows" was one of the first settled. Indians ambushed and killed three men by a stream which came to be called "Graves Brook" in memory of the catastrophe. A tributary of this brook crosses Lincoln Street today. Bank Row was so called because of the many banking establishments on it. Cheapside, once the name of this whole section, received its name from Cheapside in London, England, because the lands this side of the river had lesser value.

On East Main Street great homes were built. Some stand today, but others gave way to structures such as our post office and Franklin County Court House. A school system, by which a town is judged, gradually grew. In the early days the town hired a school master for only three months during the year. It might be interesting to note that in 1828 there was a movement for the education of girls as well as boys. "The Greenfield High School for Young Ladies," an establishment which offered much cultural and social training, was an important advancement in our educational system. There were also various seminaries and boarding schools such as the one kept by the Misses Stone on Federal Street where the Reed Block stands. As the years advanced, more schools came into being until today we have an extensive public school system as well as private schools.

Our early paper, "The Greenfield Gazette and Courier," flourished under various names and finally merged with the "Greenfield Recorder" to give us our "Recorder-Gazette" of today. Industries, such as the mill at Factory Hollow, grew and faded. Transportation changed as did the town. Horseback, stage coach, steamer, railroad, trolley, and automobile provided means for our citizens to communicate with the outside world.

Community government became more and more active as shown by the several buildings used at various times to house it. The outside interests of the town grew, and it had companies of men to send in the wars of our country. The town of Greenfield became even more important when it was chosen as the county seat of Franklin County. Now it serves as a shopping, cultural, and transportation hub. Thus, we see the early settlers knew well how to choose lands of beauty and worth.

So, after our brief review of the town in which we live, we realize how much reason there is for us to be proud of Greenfield and her one hundred and ninety-two years of existence. Therefore, let us, the citizens of tomorrow, keep her history free from blemish.

Small Tool Industries of Greenfield

REENFIELD, the home of taps and dies, is the town that produces more small tools annually than any other town or city in the world. I hope, therefore, to give you a few facts to show how these industries developed.

The events surrounding the inception and growth of the Greenfield Tap and Die form a most interesting history. In October 24, 1871, John J. Grant invented and patented a new device while he was living in Northampton, Massachusetts. Mr. Grant brought his new invention to Greenfield, where he started to manufacture his new, improved form of die in a little shack of what is now the B. B. Noyes factory on Hope Street. In brief, a die is a tool for cutting exterior threads on a screw, a bolt, rod or pipe. A tap produces the interior threads in the metal, on the walls of the holes.

In April of 1872, Solon L. Wiley and Charles P. Russell became associated with Mr. Grant for the manufacture of tools under his patent. They took the firm name of Wiley and Russell. The business was then removed to the old cutlery shop on the west bank of the Green River, where the present Wiley and Russell plant now stands.

In 1875, John J. Grant left Wiley and Russell to go to Hartford, where he established the tap and die branch of the Pratt and Whitney Manufacturing Company.

Realizing the possibilities there were in combining the interests of the various tap and die industries in Greenfield, Mr. Frank O. Wells and Frederick H. Payne brought about in 1912 the organization of the Greenfield Tap and Die Corporation, a consolidation of Wells Brothers Company and the Wiley and Russell Manufacturing Company.

In 1918 the equipment of the Lincoln Twist Drill Company of Taunton, Massachusetts, was purchased and moved to Greenfield. Also the J. M. Carpenter Tap and Die Company, originally in Pawtucket, Rhode Island, was purchased and moved to Detroit, where it is now used for the manufacture of special taps and dies for that territory. Also, in 1937, the Russell Manufacturing Company, off Carpenter's Lane in Greenfield, liquidated the company and sold its building and real estate.

However, the founders of the Greenfield Tap and Die were not the only industrialists who were aware of the need of new tools in a machine age. As this was the period of the industrial revolution, far-sighted men could see the paramount part that machinery would play in the future. From an unpretentious beginning, two Yankees started a clothes-wringer shop on a Greenfield pond bank. From that humble beginning materialized the Millers Falls Tool Company, today makers of tools used by craftsmen all over the world.

About the time of the Civil War, the two abovementioned men in the Greenfield Tool Company decided what the world needed was more and better clothes-wringers. On the bank of North Parish Pond, where Cherry Rum brook winds westward toward Green River, these two men, Levi J. Gunn and Charles Amidon, erected a tiny plant. Their capital was small, and the partners prospered briefly. Then Cherry Rum brook ran dry and with it the trickle of clothes-wringer orders. Gunn stored the firm's stock in his barn and returned to the silent mill to ponder with his partner their future, but fate had already decided this. In those days, when insurance was unpopular, the barn with all the wringers burned to the ground. But down from Windsor, Vermont, had come a William Barber, and the idea he brought gave the partners courage.

The wooden bit braces that carpenters used wore out. So these three men, Gunn, Amidon, and Barber, went to work and started making bit braces of iron with a bulge in the sweep as a handle. Eighteen braces was a good day's output at first, but production increased to many times that amount before fire destroyed the North Parish mill. Gunn and Amidon resumed business in a section of the Greenfield Tool Company, but flames again consumed the firm's holdings. This did not stop them, for the irresistible partners moved to Grout's Corner on the Millers River in the present town of Millers Falls. This move to Grout's Corner was made in 1868, and the company was incorporated as the Millers Falls Manufacturing Company, continuing under that name until 1872, when it merged with the Backus Vise Company of Windsor, Vermont, as the Millers Falls Company.

The power saw, used today in every country in the world, stemmed from an idea Pratt had in 1890. His arrangement of a crankshaft in a lathe and hack saw frame on an arm gave inventors their design for a power saw. In 1931 the general office of the company was moved from the plant on the Erving side of the river to the Wells Street plant in Greenfield, acquired by the merger with Goodell-Pratt. The present merger retains the Goodell-Pratt name on many brands for which that concern had built up a wide trade. The present war has controlled much of the company's tool export, but business has increased greatly due to national defense.

The future of these companies worries no one, because the pluck and ingenuity of the founders of these two firms have characterized those who have since directed the destinies of the concerns. Those qualities are ageless. Well might the citizens of Greenfield be proud of the work of the past generations that have blazed the way for local industrial progress. But all credit is not due to the past; the present has its laurels also. The Greenfield Tap and Die and the Millers Falls Tool Company can look with great pride to their part in the present war effort. In the manufacture of machines, guns, tanks, jeeps, bombers, fighters, and all such war needs, taps, dies, gages, and tools are indispensable. To most of us a tap or a die or a gage is just a small tool that one reads about, but actually it is a deadly weapon. These small tools, manufactured in Greenfield, are keeping our Eattle fronts on the enemy's home ground.

The development of the Greenfield Tap and Die and the Millers Falls Tool Company is a constant inspiration to the graduating class of 1945, and we know that we are to be included in the future plans of these two corporations.

Some Businesses of Greenfield

REENFIELD is located in what is conceded to be the exact spot for a great city. There are many rivers and railroads leading in four directions as well as a large area of available building land. Consequently, there are many opportunities in the field of business in Greenfield other than the small-tool industry. Since the war began in September, 1939, many of the businesses have expanded greatly. Others have changed from producing peace-time goods to manufacturing strategic military materials.

In order to conduct business successfully, a community must have excellent banks. Greenfield is fortunate in having five splendid financial institutions. Some of these banks were founded over a century ago. Through the years these banks have served the community efficiently and have established a reputation for dependability. These institutions serve not only Greenfield but also most of Franklin County.

Besides being the financial center for Franklin County, Greenfield is also the commercial center. It is the market town for 60,000 people residing in Franklin County, Southwestern New Hampshire, and Southeastern Vermont. Greenfield has a per capita retail sales of over $671. This is the highest of any city or town in the state.

Many of the nationally-known chain stores have establishments in Greenfield. These companies recognize the fact that Greenfield is an excellent trading center. Such stores as Sears, Roebuck & Co., the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., and the First National Stores provide excellent goods at low prices.

However, the majority of the stores in Green-field are independently owned. Some were founded when Greenfield was still young. S. Allen's & Son, for example, was founded 134 years ago. Although it was a tailor's shop in 1811, it gradually changed to a hardware store. Many stores in Greenfield have similar histories; others have begun business recently. However, all—Wilson's, Aliber's, Clark Hardware Co., C. H. Demond & Co., and countless others— are doing excellent business. In the last ten years many of these companies have expanded their business, and many new stores have started in Greenfield.

Also Greenfield has many fine hotels. Until 1914, when the Mohawk Trail opened for tourists, the hotels did not profit greatly. The coming of the automobile also increased the trade of these inns.

The oldest hotel in Greenfield is the "Mansion House." On the corner where that is located there has been an inn or tavern for 225 years. As a predecessor on this program has explained, at first there was only a crude log cabin for a tavern. However, it was not until 1828 that the real history of the Mansion House began. At that time Isaac Newton erected a brick building. Through the years the Mansion House has expanded constantly. Now it has a total of over one hundred rooms.

The youngest hotel in Greenfield is the "Weldon." Almost any middle-aged person can remember its founding. In thirty-five years it has become one of the leading hotels of New England. The "Weldon" started as an apartment house in 1905, but it was such a stupendous structure that it was termed "Wells' Folly." As an apartment house it operated at a loss for two years. Then the building was converted to a hotel of more than one hundred rooms. It continued to operate at a loss until the Mohawk Trail opened. Thereafter, business increased rapidly until 1927, when, as a consequence of its inadequacy, a new wing was added. Besides its tourist trade, this hotel caters to many people who come to Greenfield to take advantage of the winter sports available in this locality.

Furthermore, manufacturing in Greenfield started very early. This type of enterprise first began along the tributary streams that empty into the Connecticut River. These early manufacturers were mainly concerned with milling and grinding.

Since then, manufacturing has developed rapidly. Cutlery, tools, and various other articles have been manufactured here. Also, many of these articles were invented in this town. Woodworking and foundry products have always been made. The shoe industry started to develop, but unfortunately it ceased. Now local plants produce sanding machinery, sterling silverware, rakes, snow shovels, precision equipment, steel stamps, and cutlery. Besides the products I have named, more than seventy other products are manufactured here. These products have made trademarks of Greenfield famous.

Also, many of the industries of Greenfield other than the small-tool industries have expanded greatly since the war began. Many have converted from the manufacture of peace-time goods to the production of essential military equipment.

The smaller industries of Greenfield are not as well known as the larger ones. Many of these small plants are producting vital war materials or the machines and tools with which other local concerns manufacture war materials. One such plant is the Bicknell-Thomas Co. This firm manufactures special machines for the surrounding factories. Without the aid of this plant many of the industries would have been unable to convert to the manufacture of war materials. Another company that is making special machines is the Production Machine Co. This firm is also making grinding and buffing machines.

Too, one small factory that is doing excellent work is Bickford and Carrier. This plant makes special machines and dies for other local factories. Besides doing this, it is busy with sub-contract work on the B-29 "Superfortress."

The Paper Box Company is seldom considered an essential industry. However, it produces most of the containers for the war materials that are produced here. In this same class is the steelstamp industry. These steel stamps are used throughout the country to imprint army serial numbers on war materials. Since the war began, some new industries have developed in Greenfield. A good example of this is the Parts Manufacturing Co. Early in 1940 this firm began producing airplane engine parts for Pratt and Whitney engines. During the war the former has greatly expanded.

Also the Rugg Manufacturing Co. has completely converted to the production of military supplies. When the war began, Rugg manufactured snow shovels, rakes, and many other wooden products. These products were sold throughout the United States. Now the firm has greatly expanded its business and is producing the cartridge clip for the army carbine.

Likewise, Rogers, Lunt, and Bowlen has greatly expanded and changed its business. Although this firm was producing high quality silverware before the war, it now produces very little silverware. Instead, it produces magnetos, gun carriage parts, medals, and various other materials. This company is one of the oldest silver factories in the country. Before the war its high-quality, sterling silverware was sold throughout the country.

Located as Greenfield is — on the main railroad lines from Boston to Troy and from New York to Montreal — this community has excellent shipping facilities for both raw materials and manufactured articles. The town also contains a large extent of good building land. Likewise, plenty of labor is available throughout the surrounding territory. Thus, Greenfield is capable of greatly expanding its industries.

So the businesses of Greenfield have expanded, and new commercial enterprises have arisen. With plenty of land for new buildings and a quantity of labor available, Greenfield continues to offer many opportunities for business.

The Recreational Facilities of Greenfield

RECREATION should be an important part of the daily life of any person, for diversion is something that everyone needs. It refreshes the body and spirit after the day's work; it takes the mind off personal anxiety and worry and is an immense help in building and retaining strong and healthy bodies. The many recreational facilities here in Greenfield meet these objectives and are varied enough to suit the tastes of any person any season, a condition which is highly commendable for a town of this size.

For the person who likes to be outdoors, the amusements provided by nature are almost unlimited. The sports lover will find many possible activities in either winter or summer. In times free from war, as soon as there is sufficient snow, the toboggan chute on Rocky Mountain will provide him with a thrilling ride, whereas in either wartime or peacetime the numerous hills in Greenfield offer him fine sledding and rip-sliding.

Next, he may get out his skis and travel up to the Holland Farms, where a modern ski tow is in operation. Or, if he prefers, he may go to the hills on the west side of the town and enjoy the beautiful, natural ski trails. Surely skiing is one of the most healthful and thrilling sports known, and on the hills and trails of Greenfield this amusement is one of the most enjoyable.

As soon as the ice is thick enough, usually early in December, he may enjoy skating on the well-cared-for ponds and rinks in Greenfield. There is a rink centrally located at the corner of Beacon and Federal Streets, but, if he prefers, he may go to Highland Skating Rink, which has not only the regular pond but also a hockey rink as well. At Nash's Mills Pond he may skate far up the channel, if it is still clear of snow; otherwise, the smooth surface of the cleared portion provides a fine, large skating area. Skating on a brisk winter day surely is not only refreshing to the mind but invigorating to the body as well.

At the first sign of spring, the fisherman can get out his fishing equipment, for, with the numerous streams in and around Greenfield, he may be sure of some excellent fishing. The Green River and Barton Brook, both of which pass through Greenfield, are good fishing streams, and the Deerfield River, which enters the Connecticut River at Greenfield, is famous throughout the state as a fine trout stream. Too, any sportsman will be delighted by the fine pheasant and partridge covers afforded by the fields and woods. If he likes small game, rabbits and squirrel abound; but, if he prefers large game, there is good deer hunting in the surrounding hills. Greenfield is fortunate in having four sport clubs which annually stock the streams and liberate small game. Hunting and fishing are two of the most healthful sports known, as they bring extended contact with the out-of-doors.

As summer rolls around, Greenfield is plentifully supplied with summer recreational facilities.

There are two fine golf links, and the one at the Country Club is an eighteen-hole course. As all golf players can tell you, golf is good exercise as well as being a source of relaxation and refreshment to the spirit.

In the attractive, well-cared-for parks of Greenfield, a nature lover may be sure of healthful exercise and enjoyment. Highland Park provides tennis courts and has scenic, cool drives through groves of pine. These drives afford beautiful views of the Deerfield River and Deerfield Valley. Shattuck Park, smaller in size than Highland Park, has more varied facilities. There are picnic tables and swings under pine and birch trees. At one end there are four tennis courts, all cared for daily. Too, there are athletic fields open to the public, as well as two sets of bleachers for the spectators. Also, Beacon Field has several tennis courts, a baseball diamond, and an excellent football field and bleachers.

Further, for the pleasure and profit of youth, Greenfield has established a summer playground project, which is increasing in size and popularity every year. Each summer girls and young men are selected to supervise the various school playgrounds, which provide healthful recreational activity for the young inhabitants of this town. More and more mothers are taking advantage of this opportunity for their children to be well cared for, and the children themselves are very much in favor of the idea, as it gives them a chance to have games and competitions which enliven the summer mornings.

Greenfield, too, has riding stables and some fine woodland paths for those who enjoy horseback There are scenic mountain trails for hiking, and, for one of the most awe-inspiring views in this section of the country, there is the Mohawk Trail, a modern highway. This trail follows the paths used by the Mohawk Indians in their journeys from the Connecticut River to the Hudson River. If one wishes to see an excellent view of the territory surrounding Greenfield, the Poet's Seat Tower is the place to go, and it is only a short distance from the center of the town. One can see from the top of this tower the surrounding territory for a radius of approximately forty miles. By participating in one or all of these recreations, a person will be exercising and keeping himself physically fit.

On warm days, an individual in search of cooling pleasure may go to the outstandingly fine municipal swimming pool, which is one of the best in the state. It provides a small pool for the children, as well as a larger, deeper one for adults. It is supplied with lifeguards, and there is supervised instruction for those who wish either to learn to swim or increase their swimming ability. As swimming is one of the most healthful and enjoyable of all sports, many people take advantage of this fine pool. There are bath houses as well as a checking and refreshment stand. The grounds around the pool provide picnic tables, horseshoe pits, ping-pong and badminton courts, a baseball diamond, bowling strips, and a band concert stand. There, open-air concerts, held summer evenings, provide a relief from everyday worries.

For the person who prefers to get his recreation or relaxation indoors, Greenfield has many facilities also. At the high school there is a large auditorium, which is used for many entertainments, and also a gymnasium, which is used for the basketball games.

Those who wish to escape from the everyday world may attend any one of the fine theaters in Greenfield, one of which is independently owned and operated. This type of person can see the latest films at these modern theaters, and pictures often appear here before they are shown in larger cities.

For a healthful, invigorating, winter indoor sport, the three bowling establishments in Greenfield offer a total of twenty-eight alleys. Many bowling clubs have been formed from the shops, schools, and other organizations, as many people consider it the most entertaining of all sports. As all who have participated in this amusement can testify, bowling is good exercise and a lot of fun.

Greenfield has a Girls' Club, which was the first club of its kind organized in the United States. It is open to all girls over ten years of age. This organization provides rooms with accommodations for many types of games, including ping-pong. The club is open to working girls who wish to cook and eat their lunches there. Also, classes are held in home nursing, first aid, dressmaking, art, current topics, and any type of activity will be organized if there is a large enough demand for it.

The Greenfield YMCA has a small building now and expects to expand greatly after the war. Its plan for an indoor swimming pool will give further opportunity for recreation. In the basement of the present building there is a gymnasium for the use of the boys. On the main floor there is a club room, comfortable and well-furnished. There are also ping-pong tables for the use of the members. The meetings take place in the room upstairs, and now on Saturday nights dances for "teen-agers" are held. Men of Greenfield may enjoy association with the "Y," but as yet girls are not included in the programs, except for the dances.

Therefore, as you can see, Greenfield has many recreational advantages for every season of the year, all of which contribute toward building healthy minds and strong bodies for the inhabitants of this community. Its well-rounded program of sports and entertainment may be compared favorably with those of any other town of its size in the United States. Thus I think we may all be proud of Greenfield.

Cultural Aspects of Greenfield

\ULTURE — this is quite a high-sounding word. It quite naturally suggests to the ordinary individual huge art collections, expensive books, very ornately-costumed operas, and all the trappings of a rich aristocracy. The shop-worker looks up to the "white collar" man and says to himself, "He has culture, but I have not." This same office-worker looks at his employer and tells himself that to have culture one must be owner of some large business concern. The business man, in turn, looks up the ladder to the president of some large corporation and says, "He is a cultured individual." Thus it goes — always the person looking to his immediate superior and considering him a "cultured" individual. This should not be so—. Every person has culture, and, since people make up a town, every town has its culture also. When I was given this subject, I laughed to myself with all the confidence and knowledge of youth and said, "Greenfield has no culture." I was making the very same mistake that a great many of you may have made making the decision that there was no culture in Greenfield.

A definition of culture may be in order at this time. Webster says that culture is "the training or refining of the moral or intellectual faculties." This is again an extremely lofty terminology. Why couldn't old Noah just as easily have said that culture is appreciation of the finer things in life? That's what it is—this culture—the music people share, the art they themselves produce, the lectures they attend, the churches in which they worship, and the schools which their children attend. Of course these things are existent in Greenfield, and I shall attempt to give a few examples of them to you.

Music is a branch of culture which is shared by every one. Many races have contributed to the great store of music which is ours for the listening. The Pioneer Valley Symphony is known to many of you. In it those who are fortunate enough to be able to enjoy music through the playing of it furnish enjoyment for those who can but listen.

This community institution is as surely "cultural" as the Boston "Pops" Symphony.

Painting is another means of self-expression of the "refining of intellectual faculties" which is mentioned in the dictionary. Although every one cannot paint, there are very few people who cannot appreciate paintings. In Greenfield there exists an organization known as the "Pioneer Valley Arts Association" for the furthering of painting in our community. From time to time exhibits are held, that the general public may share the products of the talents of others. At times other local artists display their works in store windows along Main Street. There is nothing "high-class" or "exclusive" about this thing called culture; rather it is an intangible object which is shared by all the people of our community.

Another phase of culture which is within the reach of all is the custom of public lectures. Through these lectures men of science, art, literature, and religion spread the fruits of their intellects to the public. In more recent years lectures have been becoming more prominent as a form of entertainment after a decline. The war has given many more men and women opportunity to travel, and many of these people have made it a practice to share their experiences with the people of our community through lectures. The efforts of the service clubs of Greenfield, as well as the work on the part of the educational organizations, have brought to Greenfield many outstanding lecturers.

The churches of Greenfield are naturally strong supporters of culture. In addition to providing means of worship for all, the various churches have organizations which further the moral and cultural interests of the people. By working together as well as functioning as individuals, the united churches have brought programs such as the "University of Life" to the united congregations. Also, during the recent Lenten season, the churches have again united to present union services for the observance of the period, and in these services have been made available to the people of Greenfield numerous opportunities to enjoy religious services of the highest form as well as the traditional Easter music. Thus, during special seasons as well as through the rest of the year, the churches of Greenfield offer their respective congregations high religious, moral, and cultural training.

The Public Library offers the best of the literature of the world to the townspeople. In this institution are found, in addition to the literature of the English-speaking nations, the works of Polish, French, and other foreign authors whose books are printed in their native tongues. For the student of the culture of other nations as well as for the American representatives of these nations, these volumes are of intrinsic value. Through this institution, culture in one of its many forms is brought home to the people of Greenfield.

In all of these examples of culture which I have thus far presented, it is the older citizens with whom I have been primarily concerned! It must not be thought that we younger citizens have been neglected. No, it is quite the contrary. In our school life we have been given opportunity not only to get an education but also to acquire some of this thing "culture." There are art classes in which students who are gifted in this form of culture can express themselves through sculpture or painting, there are foreign language courses in which students learn much of the culture of other nations, there are music appreciation groups which gather to enjoy music, and last, but definitely not least, there are the music organizations themselves, which allow musically inclined students to play instruments both for their own enjoyment and for the enjoyment of others.

In school, too, there is the library, to which the students can go for relaxation as well as for the gaining of knowledge. Our library is a small edition of the one downtown and includes most of the same opportunities for the acquisition of culture through enlightenment and mental training.

After high school, then what? Our students find themselves ideally located in regard to other educational institutions. For courses which are the equivalent of those taught here, our town is situated nearly in the center of a ring of such schools — Deerfield Academy and Mount Hermon for the boys, and Northfield Seminary and Stoneleigh-Prospect School for the girls. For courses of beyond-high-school caliber, we are well situated for the various colleges. These include Amherst, Massachusetts State, Mount Holyoke, Smith, and Williams.

In connection with the pursuance of a college course, a student need not find himself handicapped by lack of funds. There exists in Greenfield an institution known as the Warner Fund, and, through this, a boy or girl can obtain financial aid for a college career. This fund is a splendid illustration of the interest of some of the citizens of Greenfield in the gaining of education and culture on the part of those young people who desire it.

Thus, through these various examples I have attempted to impress upon your minds that culture is a thing to be enjoyed and shared by all. I hope that I have shown that Greenfield is quite well supplied with the conditions necessary to both the existence of culture and the successful continuance of it. I think that, in spite of the war, the generations which are now growing up in Greenfield are very well equipped with opportunities to become happy, cultured citizens of the America of tomorow.

EDWARD CLARK CHASE

Class Song

(To be sung to the tune of "All Pals Together")

Let's sing together!

In this past year

We've worked bard pulling to

We've worked hard, pulling together, For the school we hold so dear.

We'll ne'er forget you,

Though we'll soon be gone.

Scholarship, honor, and loyalty —

Your motto we'll carry on.

Classmates, bid farewell

To Greenfield High.

We've been here three years together;

Our spirit will never die.

We'll stick together

No matter what may come;

We'll never forget these pleasant days

Through all the years to come.

MAE IRENE MANN

Ivy Ode

(Tune — "There'll Always Be An England")

The ivy spreads its tendrils
O'er all the walls of time,
Recalling memories so dear
In days of auld lang syne.
We have our goal before us,
To reach the heights above,
Like ivy ever growing strong,
A symbol of our love.

The virtues that we learned here
Will ever linger near
Our hearts in reverence for you,
The school that we hold dear.
And, as we plant this ivy,
Our hopes are ever high
That we may build a world renewed
And peace will never die.

Class History

IME: 1955.
Place: Shicklegruber's Palace.
Characters: Marian Allen and Bernard Koonz.

- K.: (seeing an old acquaintance coming down the street) Well, I'll be darned. Gee, it's good to see an old friend from my class.
- A.: The same to you. But, say, what are you doing over here in Europe?
- K.: Oh, I'm here with a construction company rebuilding this part of the world. What's your business?
- A.: Secretary to one of the heads of a finance corporation. We're over here trying to get these people back on their feet.
- K.: Well, that's swell. Say, how about sitting down and recalling what happened to us when we were in dear, old G.H.S.?
- A.: That suits me fine. I have all my "Exponents" with me, and they should help to recall our experiences.
- K.: You mean to say that you kept your "Exponents"?
- A.: Sure, after all they were so few and far between toward the end of our senior year that I cherished them like an orchid.
- K.: Well, get them out, and let's have a look.
- A.: O.K. Our first experience in G.H.S. was the Sophomore Reception.
- K.: Yes, I remember the "Ump" gave permission for the football players to greet their new pals and classmates.
- A.: Speaking of football players, we had that year one great player who went on and became captain of the team in his senior year.
- K.: Who was that?
- A.: Why, don't you remember? Donald Vincent.
- K.: Oh, of course! There were some other sophomores who turned out to be of great help to the "Ump" in later years.
- A.: Surely. There were "Bill" Kells, "Roy" Benjamin, Thomas Perry, and John Harris.
- K.: I can remember how "crazy" the "Ump" used to get when "Bill" Kells kept forgetting his plays.

- A.: But that's enough about football. Let's see. Who was our president that year?
- K.: Let me think. Oh, yes. "Bob" Davey carried us through our sophomore year.
- A.: Certainly! Arthur Gaines was vice-president; "Ken" Cook, treasurer; and "Betty" Cairns, secretary.
- K.: They were certainly a grand executive body.
- A.: Along about this time came our first "Mid-Years."
- K.: Yes, and, after those, our class had its first opportunity to show its ability.
- A.: What was that?
- K.: Why, the Post-Exam Dance sponsored by our class.
- A.: Oh, to be sure. We certainly got off to a swell start. Didn't we?
- K.: Yes, I wish the basketball team could have had some of that success.
- A.: That's right. We didn't do so well that year. Were there any sophomores on the team?
- K.: Let me see. They ought to be mentioned in one of these old "Exponents." Oh, yes, Norman Hallowell and "Sam" Shibilo were the only two.
- A.: Well, they were out there trying, and that's what counts.
- K.: Say, do you remember the Victory Corps?
- A.: Yes, I remember how successful it was, but what happened to it?
- K.: I don't know. I guess the interest dropped. Well, I guess that's all for our sophomore year.
- A.: Wait. You forgot something.
- K.: I did. What?
- A.: The baseball team that year.
- K.: Oh, yes, we did have quite a few members of our class on that team.
- A.: Certainly. "Ken" Cook, "Bill" Kells, "Sam" Shibilo played, and "Art" Gaines was manager.
- K.: Then came finals and our summer vacation.
 That ended with a bang our first year in G.H.S.
- A.: We started off as juniors by winning the cheering cup. This victory rather made up

- for our losing the track meet.
- K.: Yes, to win certainly required some yelling, too. We had a rather "wet" track meet though.
- A.: Yes, we certainly did. I also recall the Sophomore Reception we sponsored our junior year.
- K.: That was some fun welcoming the "plebes" to G.H.S.
- A.: It seems such a short time since I used to watch the fellows on the football field and, yet, ten years have passed since then.
- K.: That reminds me of a special event that took place back in '44. "Ump" Nichols celebrated his twenty-fifth year as a coach at G.H.S. Remember the flashy ring he sported?
- A.: Yes, and, speaking of football, I remember our "Turkey Day" game, which was played in foreign territory. It was a tie game, but we saw some wonderful playing.
- K.: I hope to be back home and on hand for this year's "Turkey" game, too, if my plans work out.
- A.: I wonder what our junior class officers are doing now. Do you remember who they were?
- K.: Yes, I know he-man "Eddie" Glatkowski was our class president then, and this "Exponent" shows that "Dave" Mann was treasurer.
- A.: Yes, "Don" Vincent, our famous skiing man, was vice-president of the class. Fay Walker, our only girl officer, was secretary.
- K.: We fellows had the edge on you girls that year.
- A.: Certainly, but we had a chance to "take" the fellows (as far as they went) to the Leap Year Dance. Do you remember that?
- K.: Yes, I remember seeing the girls shyly cornering the boys to make sure of partners.
- A.: You never could tell what we were likely to think up to provide atmosphere for a dance.
- K.: You're right. That was proved by the "Hay-seed Hop" we gave that year. That was one of the times we could don our farmer and farmerette clothes and "go to town."
- A.: Even "The Voice" was there dressed in typical farm clothes overalls.
- K.: Well, let's get into the senior year, for it is getting late.
- A.: We started off well by winning the cheering cup at the fair for the third consecutive year.

- K.: And we made a pretty good showing at the track meet, too.
- A.: Yes, Handsome "Eddie" Flynn was our pilot the last year we spent in G.H.S. He and Ann Erisman made a good pair of leaders.
- K.: The situation was reversed that year, because "Lil" Sullivan, as treasurer, and "Pep" Washer, as secretary, made it 3 to 1 in the girls' favor.
- A.: Do you remember the Thanksgiving Day game that year?
- K.: I certainly do. The boys went out to win that game at all costs, and they did it to the amazement of most Turners Falls people.
 Yes, and even many Greenfield people, too.
- A.: The class really rewarded the team that year with the best Football Dance ever.
- K.: Say, do you remember our Senior Play?
- A.: Of course. Let's see. Norman Hallowell, Lydia Scott, and Rita Kramer shared the leading roles.
- K.: They were supported by a wonderful cast which helped to make the play such a success.
- A.: The musical show that year brought a boy crooner to light. I remember when "Ken" Cook and Claire Holmes sang a duet, and how swell it was!
- K.: I remember that show very well. "Ken" was really good, too.
- A.: The rest of the year was spent in preparation for graduation.
- K.: Yes, Janice Britton was Editor of the Year-book.
- A.: She had a good working staff, too.
- K.: Who were the Class-day speakers?
- A.: Mae Mann, Ann Erisman, Alfred Paquette, Richard Jones, and Edward Chase. They did a splendid piece of work.
- K.: If I remember correctly, Mae Mann also wrote the Class Song.
- A.: Yes, and Joann Kennedy and Lillian Fall wrote the Ivy Ode.
- K.: I'll never forget the prophecy written by Jane Loomis and "Bob" Davey.
- A.: No, and I'll never forget walking out of the auditorium Graduation night. I must confess that I was sorry to leave.
- K.: Yes, I felt the same way.

Class Prophecy

CENE: Kramer's Korner (Population 102 including livestock).
Time: The future.

Characters: Jane and "Bob."

Jane and "Bob" are seated on the front stoop of Crepeau's Camp for Crumpled Characters, an old-age home.

Bob — Ha-Ha, the jokes in this copy of Esquire Magazine are quite good.

Jane — "Mickey" Benjamin's doing all right as the new editor, since he discharged that fellow Varga and hired "Terry" Hanley.

Bob — I can't keep my mind on this magazine, though, on account of that infernal racket the new neighbors are making.

Jane — Who finally moved in over there?

Bob — Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Glatkowski and their twelve youngsters. Mrs. Glatkowski is the former Mary Ann Drumgool, you know. We went to school with both of them.

Jane — Jeane Jarvis is supposed to keep the children quiet, but she spends all her time listening to recordings of that new swooner, Crooner "Kenny" Cook.

Bob — Well, here comes the paper boy, Roland Babineau, rolling up the street in his wheel chair.

Jane — Hand me my crutches, and I will hobble down to meet him.

Bob — What's the news?

Jane — Well, this is a new paper. We never got this one before. It's called "Johnson's Journal"; Owner, Bradley Johnson; Editor-inchief, Janice Britton; Sports Editor, John O'Connell; "Lonely Hearts Column" by "Patty" Greene, and cartoons by Karpinski.

Bob — Look at this advertisement on the back page — Cromack's Crumby Cookie Co. "Our cookies are the crumbiest in town."

Jane — Never mind the advertisements. Toss me the funny page, because I want to see what Warren Hale's doing this week. Oh, here it is! Last week you remember Hallowell, the hermit, stole Warren's yo-yo.

Bob — Yes, but what's happening now?

Jane—I will read it to you. The hermit has captured Hale's fiancee, Alfreda Ingram, and is holding her for ransom in Hoosick's Hock Shop. But Warren, not to be outdone, has summoned Police Chief Jerome Shea and three of his bravest men — Carl Fowler, Herbert Hohengasser, and Lee Zimmerman. Shea, arriving at the scene on his Moquin Motor Scooter, shouts, "Reach for the sky." Hale, taking the command literally or illiterately, makes a daring leap for the sky — to be continued next week.

Bob — Gee, that's exciting.

Jane — Well, I've got to go and get ready. Margaret Crepeau is throwing a party tonight; it's for her sister Claire Hurshman in honor of her approaching marriage to George Jonelmas.

Bob — We had better get started because it's quite a long way to Boyd's Burg; that's where the party is being held at the Stagger Inn.

Jane — Roger Lane manages that place, doesn't tie?

Bob — Yes, he does. That's where Paul Kimball and "Larry" Weir work; they are bell hops.

Jane — Yes, I know. The food is excellent there. The chef, Stanley Zywna, and his two assistants, "Fred" Witek and Frank Wallner, are nationally known for their ability since they enrolled in Cardwell's Cooking College for Capable Kiddies.

(Fifteen minutes elapse while the inmates of the home prepare for the party.)

Bob — Taxi!

Jane — Well, look who is driving this cab — "Pat" Akey. Let's wait for the next one.

Bob — They tell me the last ones that rode with her are still digging their way out. Better yet, let's take a bus to the station.

Jane — Here comes one of those Bousquet Buses now with "Bob" Johnson at the wheel.

Bob — Watch your step.

Jane — Let's sit near the back.

Bob — Look what's coming down the street — "Dave" Lyman and his milk truck.

Jane — Does he always drive on the sidewalk like that?

Bob — Well, I didn't always use these crutches.

Jane — What's that big building on the right of us?

Bob — That's the Oickle Office Building that the Closson Construction Co. built — There's Dr. David Mann going up to his office with his nurse, Miss Rita Kramer.

Jane — That must be the building where Austin Putnam's radio station is. They're broadcasting Bernard R. Koonz's inaugural speech tonight. He got two more votes than Roosevelt. Gilman Abar is Vice-President.

Bob — Right next door to the office building is the Lyna Laundry. Their motto is "You bring 'em; we wring 'em."

Jane — Or "You soil 'em; we boil 'em."

Bob — I hear "Al" Paquette and "Jimmy" Pluff operate the Dyer's Dryers.

Jane — Oh, there goes Marie Metelica into Roscoe's Restaurant. Helen Powlovich, Arlene Martin and Mae Mann are waitresses there. Right across the street is the place where I have my hair done — at Bickford & Brown's Beauty Salon.

Bob — Here we are at Jackson Junction. I hope our train is on time.

Jane — We better go in and buy our tickets from Mary McCarthy, the ticket agent.

Bob — This is a beautiful station. Architect John Bednarski designed it, and Lois Holtby painted all those murals.

Jane — There's Marian Allen over there in the information booth telling "Pat" Sennett what time the train for New York comes in. "Pat" just got a job at Majewski's Model Agency.

Bob — Oh, quick, here comes our train.

Jane — It seems as though I recognize the engineer — Isn't that George Miller?

Bob — Yes, it is, and there's "Larry" Warden and John Harris, the conductors.

Jane — Isn't that the famous music critic, Ann Erisman, getting on ahead of us?

Bob — Yes, but who is that with her?

Jane — That's Helen Kikowski, her personal maid.

Bob — Why! Look at that tramp underneath the first car. It's Eugene Sokolosky. George Gay must have discharged him from his staff at the Old Howard. Last I knew he was pulling the curtain there.

Jane — Let me help you on the train before it pulls out without us.

Bob — Oh, look! "Dotty" Milkey's all-girl base-ball team is in this car. There is the Pitcher, "Hurler" McInnis; Catcher, Cahill; Outfielders, Way, Wilder, and Wisnewski; Short Stop Sullivan; first basewoman, Blanche Mooney; second basewoman, "Pat" Cooke, and third basewoman, Carolyn Bresciano. They're at the top of the league this season.

Jane — Golly, am I hungry! I think I'll buy a sandwich from "Peggy" Hogan and Joyce Gibas when they come through our car with their snackmobile.

Bob — You won't have time because we are coming into our station now.

Jane — Let's get off and get a bite to eat in Taylor's Tavern.

Bob — No. Wait until we get to the party. We'll get plenty to eat there. I'll call a taxi.

Jane — Here comes one from the Kelley Cab Company. Mary Gardner is the driver.

Bob — Hop in.

Jane — Aliber's Alley, driver!

Bob — I hope we pass the Cairns's estate. It's the most beautiful home in the city.

Jane — Tell the driver to turn on the radio. I want to hear Behaylo's Bedtime Stories.

Bob—It's past the time for that program, and here is where we get out, anyway. I'll pay the driver. I like these dollar bills since they put on Mildred Allen's picture instead of George Washington's. That was "Dotty" Drew's idea. She is Secretary of the Treasury now.

Jane — I'd like to stop at LaChance's News Stand and get some of Beaudoin's Bubble Gum before we go in the hotel.

Bob — You won't need to. I have some in my pocket.

Jane — Say, that is a nice-looking suit you have on.

- Bob Why, yes, 1 got this cheap over at Casey's Classy Clothing Store.
- Jane Let's go in now and look the hotel over. There's "Bob" Bitzer, the door man, helping Leyden's Mayor, "Bernie" Schatz, out of his limousine.
- Bob My, you can hear the music way out here in the street. They're playing Regis Rodd's song hit, "Meet Me Under The Table, Mabel."
- Jane Sounds like a good band. Whose is it?
- Bob The sign says, "Jib and Jibe with the Aumand Tribe," featuring "Eddy" Chase and his clarinet; "Rae" Crowley, champion woman trombonist; "Lou" Kozik, saxaphonist; Ann Baiarunas at the keyboard of the piano; Theresa Yobst and Georgianna Stafford with their trumpets, and Alice Harvey with her harmonica. Nita Cunningham is the vocalist. That's the outfit that just finished a twenty-three-year engagement at Pelc and Petrin's Pool Parlor.
- Jane Let's go in and look the place over.
- Bob Here comes Fire Chief, Vincent Bonzek, and three of his fire bugs, "Ronnie" Powers, "Fred" Rau and "Vic" Walker.
- Jane—"Bill" Blanker, chairman of the school committee, is sitting over there with the rest of the school board—Esther Reynolds, Shirley Tuttle, and Ann Alden. That must be Blanker's bodyguard, "Alee" Radavich, beside him.
- Bob I see this year's academy-award winner, Lydia Sanderson Scott, who won the Oscar for her superb performance in "Grevel Gertie's Last Stand." She played opposite "Eddie" "Hopalong" Singley and his horse "Rover."
- Jane Frank Pulaski, national tiddlywink champion, is with "Sam" Shibilo, author of "Lassie Go Home." Next to him is "Tom" Collins, owner of the Collins Collapsible Kiddie Car Corporation.
- Bob Here comes our own mayor, Walter Musiak, with that girl he's been courting all these years Mary Masiello.
- Jane Jean Dinsmore, the famed ventriloquist, is just arriving with her sponsor Evelyn Cobb, maker of that wonderful remedy for coughs, colds, and aching feet.
- Bob They certainly have plenty of cigarette girls here. I've counted six already Mae

- Koziski, Helene O'Hara, Jane Schatz, Lillian Sullivan, Carolyn Volpe and June Townsend.
- Jane There is Rosemarie Spat passing out programs. Let's see what the floor show is going to be like.
- Bob The Gagnon sisters, Mary and Helen, are going to sing, and James Harris will accompany them on his violin.
- Jane Second on the program is that sensational dancing act with Ann Grader, "Dotty" Thouin, Frances Graves, Shirley Webb, and Palma Totaro. Helen Hawkes is their instructor, you know.
- Bob Edward Flynn, the great actor, is to be master-of-ceremonies. His picture appeared on the cover of "Lifeless" magazine last week.
- Jane Here is a male quartet I never heard before composed of first tenor, "Dick" McNamara; second tenor, Raymond Burniske; baritone, "Ray" Clough, and bass, "Charlie" Blake.
- Bob I bet this novelty ballroom dance with "Pat" Hanley and "Dick" Faust will be good.
- Jane Here is an act starring the 4-F's Fosmire, Fall, Fritz, and Foley. Right after that is Barbara Barnes and her featured tap dance.
- Bob Comedian "Fink" Fiset is going to appear through the courtesy of the Parda and Perry Peppy Toothpaste Company.
- Jane That sounds like a pretty good entertainment. What do you say we go in and join the rest in the dining room now? Pauline Sargent, the hotel hostess, seems to have everything prepared.
- Bob Richard Jones, the head-waiter, is giving his waitresses Marvette Johnson, "Betty" Howard, Anna Chula, and Katherine Ashley a last-minute "pep" talk.
- Jane Wait a minute Isn't that the fire alarm I hear?
- Bob Yes, everybody seems to be running to the fire. Let's hobble out and see where it is.
- Jane They say it is across the street at Newton's Night School.
- Bob I know several of the teachers the chemistry teacher, Joann Kennedy; geometry teacher, "Gwen" Glazier; home economics instructor, Lucille Jackman; and Persis Washer, the head of the stenographic department. I hope they all get out safely.

Jane — Why don't we stand here in the street where we can watch?

Bob — Look! Someone's jumping off the roof.

Jane — Why, it's Mary Goulart, one of the pupils. She's jumping into that net held by "Don" Vincent, principal of the school; vice-principal, Steve Golash, and the janitor, Walter Gochinski.

Bob — Here come Fay Walker and Jeanette Houston, reporters of the "Tusinski Times." Let's ask them how the fire started.

Jane — I just heard someone say it all happened because Marilyn Sprague dropped a lighted cigar in the waste basket.

Bob — Well, it's getting late; almost nine-thirty. We'll have to hurry, if we get that airplane home.

Jane — The Adler Airport is just around the corner. Here we are already.

Bob — Let's take one of those Houston Helicopters. They're equipped with the latest invention, the Cotton Cushion, for easier riding.

Jane — I'm sure we'll get back safely with Marilyn Tourtellotte as our pilot and Lucille LaPointe as our co-pilot. Helen Woodard, the air hostess, will see to it that our trip is comfortable.

Bob — Let's sit here behind Kay Donovan, Barbara Haskins, and Marion Godzinski. They must be coming home from the National Housewives' Convention that was held in Boutwell's Barn. Anna Houghton, president of the club, introduced Pauline Bonzek who talked on "How to Keep Your Pots and Pans Clean with Sestili's Steel Wool."

Jane — Well, I hope we get back to the home pretty quick. I'm still hungry!

Forums

This year the history forums under the guidance of Miss Curtis and Miss Rose have been very successful. There has been an opportunity for students to meet and discuss paramount issues of the world today. Our first forum leader, Mr. Paul Pirmov, spoke about Russia and our relations with her. Dr. Marie Gutoska from Massachusetts State College told of her native Poland with its great past and hopeful future. At another forum the students were given the opportunity of meeting Mr. John Heselton, our newly elected congressman. He reviewed the duties of a district attorney and led a discussion on problems facing the new congress. To tie in with the study of Latin America, five motion pictures were shown. They covered South America's industries, the importance of grain, the life of the common people, and the hopes for the future of our "good neighbors."

Mr. Hubert Kregeloh, a radio news commentator, spoke on the value of education for a peaceful world and led a discussion on current topics of interest.

Dr. Grover C. Bowman of North Adams State Teachers College conducted a forum about the Dumbarton Oaks Plan.

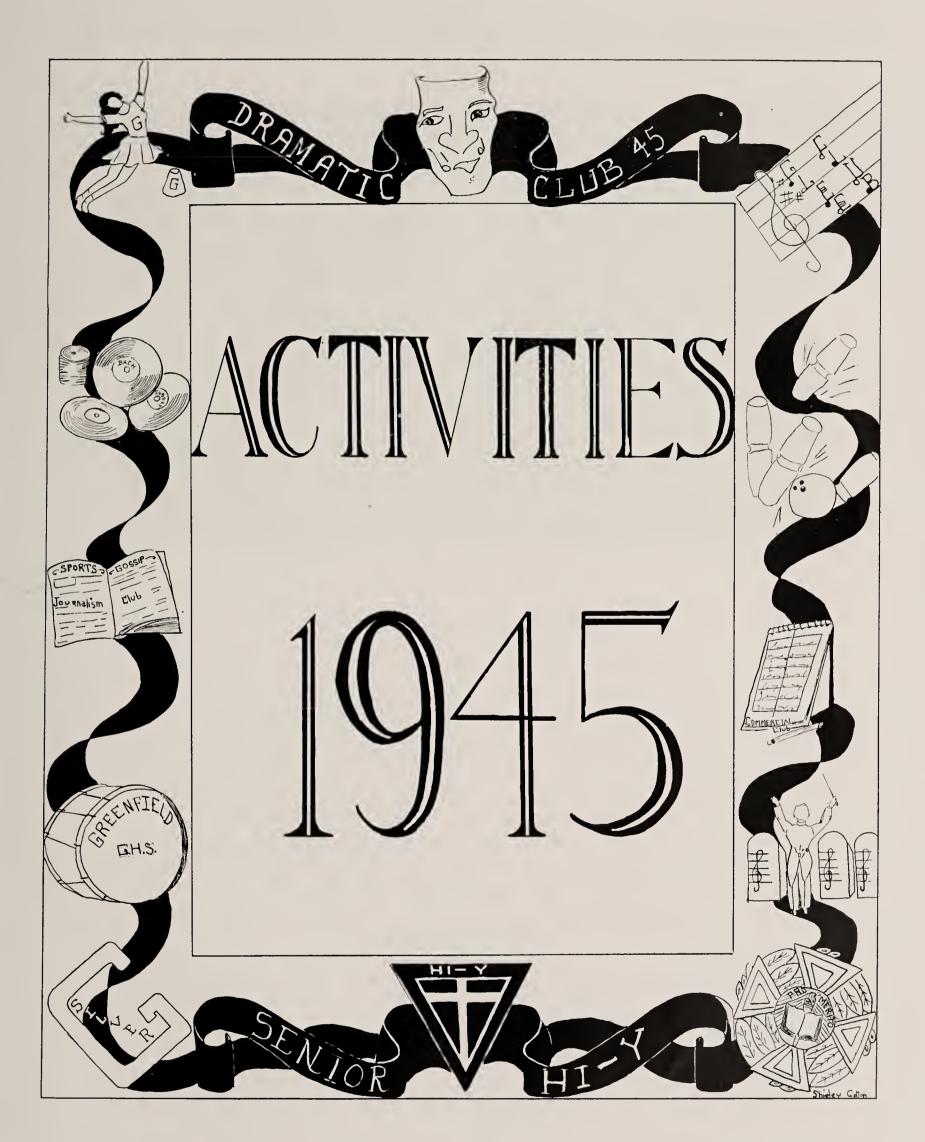

This has been a brief review of the highlights of our history forums for the year. May they continue to bring value to others in the future.

War Savings Stamps Program

The War Savings Stamps Program started in the high school under the supervision of the Student Council on February 17, 1942. A War Savings Stamps Committee is appointed each year to organize and carry on this vital program. This year the committee consists of Joann Kennedy, chairman, Robert Richardson, Frances Graves, Louis Koonz, John Masiello, and Florence Gormley.

Since this program started, $36,589.30 worth of stamps and bonds have been purchased by the high school faculty and students. Two years ago we received the honor of flying the Minute Man Flag, an award for over 90% student participation within one month in buying stamps. This year we have received this honor for four successive months.

This program has been a great aid to the war effort as well as a wonderful opportunity to save money for future needs. The students are to be commended for realizing this and acting accordingly.

Senior Hi-Y

The Senior Hi-Y is one of the oldest organizations in our high school. Its purpose is to create, maintain, and extend good fellowship among students.

One of the projects of Hi-Y was to plant a tree on the school lawn in memory of those boys from G.H.S. who have died for their country in the present war. The dedication is inscribed on a granite plaque near the tree.

Dedication of Memorial Tree

It is a time honored custom to erect war memorials to commemorate the spirit of the brave men and women who have died in the cause of their country. The emphasis in the pattern and design of most of them has been focused upon the glorification of war. Too few have for their basic principle the perpetuation of the instruments of peace. In life there is always hope. Hope, which is built upon the faith that "right makes might," is eternal.

These are the thoughts which influenced the Senior Hi-Y Club, under the leadership of David Mann, to choose a tree in humble respect to the members of G. H. S., who have given their lives in World War II. A tree is the living symbol, given to man by God alone, by which he is inspired to mold and shape his own destiny.

It is singularly significant that on this day, Wednesday, April 25, 1945, the dedication of this Memorial Maple Tree and the International Conference at San Francisco should take place, since both represent the true instruments of peace.

Seniors as Town Officers

A new project was started by the Student Council this year. As a consequence, seniors actually served in the various town offices.

From the class of '45 town officers were chosen by the entire school. After this election several others of the personnel were appointed by the "Board of Selectmen." All these student-selected officers then went to the respective town offices to observe the mechanics of town government. Later on, there was given at an assembly information concerning what the student officials had observed and experienced.

Cheerleaders

This year our cheerleaders, captained by Helen Hawkes, a veteran of two years, have worked very hard to bring to a successful end many of the school projects. Through their hard work and continual practice they won for us the coveted cheering cup awarded each year at the Franklin County Fair. Their attendance at home and out-of-town games has indeed been commendable. The spirit and enthusiasm with which they led the cheering did much to raise the morale of the teams.

Participating in the annual musical show was not the least of their work, and they practiced hard and faithfully to make it a great success.

As the cheerleading squad of the school has always been a very important organization, we were fortunate in having such a fine group of students in this capacity.

Football

The Greenfield High School Football Team completed a successful season by upsetting Turners Falls High 12-7 on Thanksgiving Day. The football squad showed a fine spirit of cooperation in winning four games, losing three, and tying one. Donald Vincent, captain of the 1944 football team, did a capable job in leading the team.

Battle actions on distant fronts may consume only a few hours time. But preparations extend back over months, even years. The making of tools to produce the weapons of combat is actually the primary step.

In view of the great military actions taking place throughout the world, it is indeed fortunate that America has the basic facilities to carry on the greatest armament program in history.

BUT, these wonderful facilities cannot be fully operated without abundant manpower. Every graduate of Greenfield High School has an opportunity to help in making American battle actions successful. Some of the boys over 18 may actually be inducted and see active service, but for the girls, and boys who are not of military age or who are not taken into the armed services, there are equal opportunities for essential service on the production battle line.

The Greenfield Tap and Die Corporation is a vital war industry whose importance to the armament program cannot be overemphasized. GTD invites the GRADUATES OF THE CLASS OF '45 to join the ranks of the Soldiers of Industry. There are opportunities in both factory and office.

Well, what do you know, I'm putting my "dough" right in the bank.

My account is getting bigger all the time.

Well, what do you know, the Franklin Savings is the bank.

Deposit your "dough" and watch it grow along with mine.

To think I was a spendthrift a couple of months ago,

And now it's no joke, I'm never broke, and seldom do I owe—

Well, maybe tonight, when you've seen the light, you can sing with me,

Our bank accounts keep growing all the time.
